

VII. UNATTENDED CHILDREN

Parents are responsible for the behavior of their children while they are in the library. Children age nine(9) and under may not be left unattended in the library. Unattended children age ten(10) and over are free to utilize the library as needed, provided they demonstrate purposeful use of library resources and their behavior is not disruptive to other patrons and staff. Unattended children with no observable intent to use the library resources will be identified by staff, and parents contacted. If the problem continues after parents have been notified, or they could not be reached, the police department will be contacted to pick up the child.
